there is an element however of pooling of patients so sales next year may actually be less than this year.

one thing you can definitely discount are publisher written testimonials the reality is that progress in ai is hype-defyingly slow, and there will be plenty of time for feedback from incremental implementations, with humans wielding the screwdriver at every stage.